ABSTRACT

Works pertinent to the study of journalism in the black community are listed in this bibliography. The works are divided into six sections: selected general reference works dealing with black studies, selected black periodicals, books, articles, doctoral dissertations, and masters' theses. Two additional sections list selected United States libraries with major black history collections and contemporary black newspapers in urban areas. The listed works deal with a variety of topics related to the history of black journalism, including black authors, the role of the black press, race relations and the black press, black women in journalism, and black-controlled broadcast media.
